Most of the cattle at the Chicago Fat Stock Show, were sold to Chicago butchers at 71-2 cents per pound on hoof.

There are 12,000 cattle quarantined in Crawford, Washington and Summer counties, Kan., where Texas fever is said to exist.

Some Galloway grade calves were recently sold on the Kansas City market and brought ten dollars, or four dollars more than the ruling price.

St. Joseph, Mo., has just completed and opened for business, at an expense of over $1,000,000, stock yards which cover 440 acres. This will divide the cattle and hog trade with Omaha.

The Santa Fe has reduced live stock rates from Southern Kansas points from $10 to $5 per car to meet the reductions made by the roads from Nebraska points and the Northwestern country.

A Texas Steer's Frame.

A writer in the Houston Post says "the Texas steer has, perhaps the finest frame on earth," and goes on to claim that 100 bushels of corn can be produced in that State to the acre, upon which basis he proceeds to paint a most glorious future for the cattle industry of that State. There can be no doubt that if the resources of Texas were properly "worked," its capacity in the way of cattle production would be almost illimitable. But there is need that the hundred bushels of corn should be in the "crib" instead of the imagination, and that the great mass of cattle growers in the Lone Star State should be educated to the advantage of producing more improved stock. Texas will never achieve her possibilities as a great cattle growing State so long as any considerable proportion of her people believe that the Texas steer possesses the "finest frame on earth." In point of fact, while not possessing the finest form on earth, the searcher after a more ill-favored one would certainly be compelled to extend his travels into far-distant foreign ands in order to find it. With such a foundation and plenty of corn Texas can undoubtedly produce an abundance of cattle which are merely fat, but she cannot produce the quantities of strictly firstclass beef which will enable her to lead in the markets. But with improved cattle and her undoubted capacity in corn production, her cottonseed meal, and the case with which an abundance of nutritious grasses and other forage can be secured, there is no reason why Texas should not lead all competitors in the production of every grade of beef and in the safely and profitableness of the cattle indus-There are none of us "living uite up to our gifts," but Texas appears to be a little more carelous

Last Saturday night an Indi-vidual whose name is Kimkam, or Timkins, applied at the hostelry of mine host John Hogan, a few doors east of the new theater, for lodgings. His demand was complied with, and he was soon tucked away as comfortably as though he reposed upon a couch of down. He complains, however, that there was such a racket around the premises that he could not sleep, and the result was that he arose yesterday morning in a decidedly savage frame of mind. After performing his ablutions he walked into the barroom connected with the house, where he remained toasting his toes for some time. Finally he left the bouse without saying a word about a settlement for his night's lodging. Mr. Hogan followed him to the door, and asked: "Haven'to to the door, and asked: "Haven'tyou forgotten something?" Timkins replied: "I guess not—what is it?" "You forgot to pay for your transaction to our reporter—Hogan called Timkins a d-d - - - - -, when the latter drew from his coat pocket a pistol, and fired. As soon as Hogan saw the pistol he dashed into the room, shut the glass door and ducked his head. It seems that Timkins had some trouble in cock-ing his pi-tol, and to this circumstance Hogan undoubtedly owes his life, for no sooner had Le dodged than the bullet came crashing through the glass and grazed the back of his head. Timkius remained in the vicibity

Our merchants are fixing for the holidays by laying in the Xmas stock.

Our railroad men now show quite a sprinkling of Renoites.

Rev. J. M. Helsey, our resident minister, who has been with us for six years, will preach his farewell sermon on X mas night. Fro n here he will move to Gonzales, Monterey county, Cal., where be will preach the gospel.

The carpenter's hammer still makes music in different parts of the town; young marifed men and young men contemplating matrimony are the prime causes thereof. Railroad officials are hard at work on the new time card. Busin as is steady and brisk, and principally cash.

Churchill county ranchers bring in alfalfa every week. Ruling market price, baled, is $11 per ton.

On New Year's Eve the machinists give a full dress party at Music Hall. Reno music has been entraged and we look forward in anticipation of a jolly good time, and an arl-around grand success. Our schools have a full-attendance of industrious boys and girls.

Frost bolds the weather reins. Edwin Fowler has been catering to the good old Persummon taste by is luscious fruit. The article is of a Japanese variety, sweeter and larger than that to which we have in years past been accustomed, still persimmons for all that.

From some of our private correspondence with some of the leading teachers of the State, we notice that the State University and its very efficient faculty have best wishes for continued prosperity and good work. This is as it sho and we look for better results every term. Public school teachers who have heretofore looked at every action of the Regents as an abortive public for the benefit of a favored few now see th ir mistakes and inand deed to make Nevada's University the crowning feature of our edu-cat onal system. For the benefit of the bangback, doubting Thomases who are not giving their support to the noble effort being made in Reno to establish a public readingroom at that place, let us tell of the success in Wadsworth. Five years ago, George Gregg, a broad-mindat Wadsworth, took the first step to found the Engineers, and Mechanics' Library Association. To lay in this place of perhaps $00 inhabitants we have 2,400 well-selected books a $1,000 building, with the best applications in the State and best appintments in the Stare, and in the Summer time a lawn and in the Summer time a lawn and flowers of which any horticulturist might well be proud. The institution contains many gifts from the leading officials of the Central Pacific railroad, and to these noble men, who have given aid and protection to the Association, are due the heartfelt thanks of a grateful community. When looking at the fly leaf of many of the valuable works, I find the names of C.P. Huntin tou, Leland Stanford, A. J. Stevens, J. A. Fillmore, Mrs. C. Crocker an lothers. There is no argument necessary to prove to the intelligent farmer that good shelter for stock during the Winter months is a great saving of food, and now that "hay is hy" in Nevada, it becomes selfevident to everyone interested to the Winter months is a preat savevident to everyone interested to lowing on the same subject in a foreign exchange, and think it is worth reading:

Attention was recently called in these columns to the great extent to which the custom still prevails of Wintering cattle day and night in the open fields, and as long as those who practice this system are fairly successful and (taking one season with another) generally turn out their cattle at a profit, it is not likely they will relinquish for the more costly and laborious method of housing stock during the Winter. But that there is waste—waste of animal heat and consequently of flesh and food—where stock are left without shelter no one can deny, and as these are times when there is little mar.

Hoyt & Co., whold s. le and refail drugs stock House, 64s., say: We have been sell nr Dr. a. nr's New Discovery, Electric ditters, Bucklen's Arnice salve or iwo years. in we new row new or in years as she clon. There have been entirely new there are times when there is little mar. are times when there is little margin for waste in any branch of farming, would it not be well for the advocates of the outlying system to consider whether they might not improve upon the practice of their forefathers, and by a comparatively trifling outlay Winter more cattle than they have hitherto, and bring them out in better condition on the same acreage and with the same amount of food.

There are some stock-keepers who do not believe in shelter, and who will tell you that steers which have been Wintered "out" will do better when the Spring grass comes than those that have been housefed (this idea having originated from house-fed cattle being inconsiderately turned out in cold spring weather), but many, we believe, are deterred from providing shelter for their stock from dread of the expense, the erection of farm buildings being associated in their minds with an array of masons carpenters, slaters and attendants that any prudent man, who has had experience of them, will carefully avoid. Good shelter for store cattle can, however, be provided without much costly work, as many of us can say from experience.

Sheds in fields are common in grazing districts in the south of England, and would be more frequently seen in Ireland if their value were better known. An extensive breeder and grazier in Leinster, who rears a number of calves and sends them as yearlings to an outlying farm, has within the last few years erected sheds in the fields there, and finds his two-yearhead better than those of the same age were which had no shelter. In fact, the cost of rough shedding in fields where cattle are running all the Winter would certainly be repaid in two years, and very probably in one, in the increased value bly in one, in the increased value of the animals.

Sometimes for the sake of economy, when a permanent description of shedding is erected, it is placed at the corner of four fields, and by removing a portion of the four fences at their junction, and building in place of them four party walls at right angles to each other, and a pier in each field, four rectangular sheds will be provided under one roof. This plan auswers well enough for small occupations where there are not many cattle together, but when the fields are large, long sheds at opposite sides of the fields are best; the cattle will then take their choice of them, as they do of trees and bedges, according to the way of the wind. A double shed can, of course, be built for adjoining fields, giving shelter on both sides of the fences.

The old superstition of hollow horn and wolf in the tail was introduced from Guernsey, and it is said that it is prevalent there yet among the ignorant cow doctors. INFANTILE SKIN DISEASES

Our oldest child, now six years of age, when he infant six months old was attacked with a virulent, malignant skid disease. All ordinary remedies failing, we called our lamily physician, who attempt d to cure i; out it spread with almost incredible rapidity, until the low reportion of the little sellow's person, from the middle of his back down to his knees, was one solid resh, ugly, painful, but cod, and maliciou. We had no rest at night, no peace by dar. Finally, we we readvised to try the Cutteura Ranguras. In the cor four weeks a complete cure was wrought, leaving the little fellow's person as white and headthy as the uch he had never been attacked. In my opinion your valuable remedies saved his life, and to dy he is a strong, healthy child, per cetily will, no repetition of the disease having ever occurred.
